MISSOULA--

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock the Grizzly football squad will hold a controlled scrimmage on the field behind the Fieldhouse on the University of Montana campus.

The scrimmage will not be held at Dornblaser Stadium in order to avoid a conflict with the combined Montana Invitational-Harry Adams Relays track meet that is scheduled to begin there at 11:30 Saturday morning.

The scrimmage will cap the second week of spring practice for the 60 individuals who are out for spring ball. Grizzly coach Jack Swarthout has expressed satisfaction with the way the spring drills are progressing and he expects some fine efforts in the scrimmage.

The same format that was employed in last Saturday's scrimmage at Dornblaser will be used. That is the kicking game will remain on the sidelines, but game-like down and yardage situations will be used.

One difference between this scrimmage and last week's will be that the first team defensive and offensive units will have a go at each other. Last Saturday the first team offense ran at the second defensive unit and the second offensive unit knocked heads with the tentative starting defensive team.
